Christmas Decorating

It is that time of year again, to get out and put up some Christmas decorations. Several McGillites have done that. So, pick out a power pole and decorate it in memory of Rose Papez. This has become a great annual tradition. Here are some photos of the ones that have been done.

The stringers are lights that show up at night.

This one is by the Post Office.

I did some decorating in the Drugstore, especially the front windows. The tinted glass makes it hard to see the decorations and displays.

Old Photo

The copper pit in the late 40s early 50s. It was quite a thrill to watch the steam shovels and trains at work. It was an awesome sight.
